

Eros

I want to be clear and ensure we'd be in alignment with energy and intention

- this isn't about love, though ultimately that is the fabric of everything
- this isn't about inhibition. it's raw. it's unfiltered. it's messy.
- it's natural. its connection to the animal part of our being.
- it's smells, tastes, and sensations. it's the muskiness of crack and fur, the sweat of pits and hair, the taste of salt on enlivened skin, it's pheromones that stir one into frenzy
- this isn't about holding back or censoring
- it's about a complete giving into the xxxploration with no shame, no guilt, no fantasy unfulfilled, no fetish off limits
- to be clear this is about primal play. what becomes possible when the chatter of society and dogma are finally released and eros is fully embodied